Saloonkeepers Outwitted.

CLEVELAND, October 11 -The Judge and Prosecutor of the Poisce court neatly turned the tables on the salconkeepers who are awaiting trial for violating the Sunday closing law. It has been the intention of the offenders to delay proceedings by the interposition of technicalities, and finally blockade the police court. The Judge and Prosecutor went before the grand jury and secured indictments against three of the offenders, thus tranferring their cases from the police court to the criminal court. It i is rumored that similar action will be taken in all other cases. Judge Nobic, of the Common Pleas Court, overruled the bill of exceptions filed by J. F. Mollitor, who is under sentence of $25 and and ten days for violating the Sunday lay, and this means that all the saloonists who have been convicted must go to juil or carry their cases to the Circuit Court, which latter they will hardly do.

Washington, C. H., October 11 .- Several weeks ago E. D. Castleton, of this city, commenced the organization of a dramatic company, and secured a number of show people from all parts of the country. A week ago he had a misunder-tanding with Max Rosenburg and his wife. Miss Emma Bell, and three other members of his company, and dismissed them all, filling their places with other talent. Last night Castleton's Dramatic Enterprise made its first stand at the opera house. At the conclusion of the performance the company went to Manager Castleton in a body and notified him that they would cancel their engagement with him. This was like thunder from a clear sky to the manager, who was confident of success with his enterprise. The company at once organized under the management of H. M. Markham, and will take the road Thursday night. Following are the names of the deserting company: F. C. Ormond, of New York; H. M. Markham and Miss D.t Putnam, Baltimore; George A. term of office, in 1871, there was a settlement between the Government and him self, which resulted in the Government leaving a suspended account of $24,000. The account was audited, and Mr. Davis was given a credit of $22,000, and a previous credit of $4,000 in his favor was allowed to stand. Sixteen years afterward it was discovered by the Washington office that Mr. Davis' account for his first term was overdrawn something over $2,000. It is a rule the government has adopted that its accounts are never closed, and that it may assert a claim at its convenience, and without regard to statutes of lunitations. A suit was accordingly filed against Mr. Davis's sureties for his first term of office. They were F. C. Miller, Edward J. Wilson, J. H. Bates, E. T. Kidd, James Dalton, Adolphus Carnes, Job E. Stevenson and Joseph Cox. The bond was for $150,000. The court held that, as the Government had in its hands at the end of Mr. Davis' first term of office sufficient funds to have satisfied this claim, the carrying over of his account into a new term, instead of immediately debiting him with the amount of his overdraft, releases from liability these sureties, who are entitled to plead all defenses.

SPEAKER CARLISLE'S

Opinion of the Senate Tariff Bill Expressed in a Letter.

NEW YORK, October 10 .- Speaker Carlisle, writing to a member of the Democratic National Committee, says of the Senate tariff bill: "I have not had time or opportunity to make a satisfactory analysis of the provisions, but it is apparent at a glance that it proposes in many instances, to reduce the revenues of the Government by increasing the taxes upon the people. This is a new departure in our financial legislation and if adopted as a permanent policy, trusts and combinations to limit the production and control the prices of domestic articles will become part of the established institutions of the country. The increases of duty in the bill are quite numerous and altogether unjustifiable, and I hope the committee will have it carefully examined by competent experts, in order that the true character may be exposed before the election. In some cases these increases are affected by changing the existing classifications of dutiable goods and in others they are effected by changing the duty from an advalorem to a specific rate. In such cases the increases are not apparent on the face of the bill and it requires some expert knowledge to detect them. EX-SPEAKER CONVERSE-

At 2:20 Mr. Hiscock took the floor to address the Senate on the Tariff bill. Protection, Mr. Hiscock said, by stimulating production reduced prices. He claimed that the Republican administrations had been responsible for the constantly decreasing cost of production in the last ten or fifteen years and the chief factor in the successful war on high prices. Democratic orators were attempting in manufacturing districts to shut their grounds and conceat the purpose of their party. The question of the amount of taxation was not involved in this discussion. The difference was one of methods. It would not benefit the taxpayer to have half of the dutiable articles placed on the free list as was proposed by the Mills bill. He then examined some of the details of the Mills bill, claiming that there were discriminations in favor of Southern as against

[Special Correspondence.] NEW YORK, Oct 4.-Economy is the source of wealth, we all know, and that is the reason that so many women take pieces of their husband's old trousers and sew them all over with gold braid and all colors of silk, and then pay a shoemaker $5 to put soles and heels on them, so that "dear hubby can have a valuable but economical pair of slippers for his dainty little footsy tootsies when he comes home," and thereby the good and economical little wifey saves enough money to buy her a winter bonnet, and besides earns a reciprocal present on Christmas, usually a scalskin cloak Being a woman | m u c h . I n myself, I can't quite explain how it is that it makes a sufficient saving on the price of a pair of slippers that could be bought ready made for $1.50, to buy a $35 bonnet and pay $5 to the shoemaker besides, but it must be so, or custom would not have proved it infallible. Wenen are not expected to reason and practice economy both. One is quite enough, particularly when such abstruse problems as how to raise $38 50 out of the seat of a pair of old pants at once with a crear title to a scalskin or dlamond ring in the future are involved. Women may not be able to ergile, to set up their premises and draw their deductions, and convince their hearers by their logic, but what with their comomy and their tears they "get there just the same."

Yesterday I sat in a window on a much frequented thoroughfare, which is thronged with lagies every afternoon, and sucdenly the idea struck me to count the bonners and hats, and cily those which had no counterparts, during one hour. I did so and counted 412 we nonand girls each and every one of whom had on a head covering centrely different from her sisters. Why it is that a 'young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," while a woman's soul's devotion bows before a sealskin, are things that no fellow can find out, but there is nothing, not even the love for a real cashmere shawl over which the scent of the goat and the filthy hut where a greasy Mohametan made it hangs for ver, and which, by the way, is regarded by the owners as the odors of Araby the blest, and as such cherished and sniffed at with admiring noses, that can equal the undying affection for a sealskin sacque. It is not enough to have short sacques. but the demand was imperative for New markets which reach to within a few inches of the bottom of the dress, and of course it was filled. A Newmarket costs about $300 for a good quality. Then there are walking jackets, dressy and stylish, for about $100, but these can only be worn by slender people. Then there was a demand for dolmans, wraps and other outdoor wear, and this season the furriers have surpassed themselves in the perfection and grace of their sealskin wraps. A pretty round shoulder cape is called the Princess Mathilde, though why they name it after her is hard to understand, for she is almost as big as the fat woman, and could never wear one. The wraps, when trimmed with sable of plucked beaver, cost about $150, the cape about $50 to $60, according to size. The plush coats and Newmarkets resemble sealskins so closely that it is almost impossible to tell them apart without touching them, and they do nearly so

FARM AND GARDEN.

IMPROVED MODES OF AGRICULT-URE PRACTICED BY FARMERS.

How to Build a Poultry House and Give the Largest Amount of Ground Room, That Shall Be Cool in Summer and

In building a poultry house a leading consideration with the average farmer is economy. It is claimed that the cheapest way to build a poultry house and give the largest amount of ground room (which is what counts with poultry) is to make but one roof and have that meet the ground. In accordance with this idea H. H. Stoddard illustrates and describes in his work on poultry architecture a poultry house for the farmer. In the cut given the building, nine feet wide at the underpinning and nine feet high at the highest part, gives as much floor room for the fowls to move about in as if the walls were high on all sides of the structure, and with great economy in building materials.

POULTRY HOUSE FOR THE FARMER. There should be twelve doors in the building, beside the small opening under the windows for the use of the fowls, and the ventilator (represented open) near the peak. There are three board doors in the end, the tallest being for an attendca to enter and the other two for ventilaion to extremely hot weather. The door says of the board doors are furnished with another set of doors made of lath. One of these may, be seen in the cut, where a board door is open. When the oard doors are all opened in hot weather cal the lath cloors shut, there is a fine a rlation of vir. It may seem as if there cre an overplentiful allowance of doors, at we have tried as many to a building oth satisfaction. To make the house as warm in winter as it is cool in summer copiall the board doors closed but one, and have a package of straw between ach lath door and the corresponding chard dur, excepting, of course, the fall si par of doors where the attendant on

Solution of the Gapes Difficulty.

A New "ampshire correspondent in Poultry World says For the past five years we have been entirely exempt from it I saw it stated in an English journal that the gapeworm sprang from the louse that infests the heads of chickens the first ten days after hatching, and if the hen was entirely free from lice while siting, the chicks would not have the gape wolm. Since that time we have made sure that lice were exterminated from all sitting hens and their nests, and the gape worm has given us no more trouble.

So far as can be judged from what has tallen under my observation, the above is the real solution of the gape difficulty. I never saw gapes among chicks batched in an incubator. The chicks get the lice from the hen, and the hen can, by the proper treatment, be made as free from ce as an incuba or When the hen is arst given the clutch of eggs, dust Dalmattan insect powder among ber feathers. and repeat the operation a few days be fore the eggs batch, and the lice will be Tobacco dust is also a sure and cheap destruction for lice, but not quite as suitable for the incubating hen as Dalmatian powder.

Home Made Fertilizers.

From the Connecticut Experiment staion has been received a report of the revits of 857 samples of home made fertihers analyzed, together with conclusions rayer from these analyses. The valuation per ton set on these home made fertilizers ou sall the way from $41.22 to $26.53; the cost of the chemicals (unmixed) of nom 857.38 to $28 per ton. Examinations of the samples and of the table of annives make it seem that:

First-That these home mixtures com have favorably in composition with the best commercial fertilizers. In all cases out one the valuation is higher than the average valuation of factory made superphosphates or specials analyzed last year Second—While the home mixtures are not as finely ground as the best factor; made fertilizers, they are yet satisfactor;

Third—In only one case does cost of materials exceed valuation. If we add $1 per ten for cost of mixing the valuation and the cost will still be about the same. The cost of factory made fertilizers asually exceeds valuation 20 to 25 percent. These analyses seem to justify the statement made in the last report that while it is oftener cheaper for the purhaser to buy the best commercial mixtures, ammoniated superphosphates and peral manures, than to buy the chemicals and mix them, yet the experience of a scarly mercasing number of farmers there a their officer money may be saved by ... o be apparable purchase of fraw materials o a takur takem kaman mintures.

Beets for Cattle Feed.

A careful consideration of the subject in all its bearings by James T. H. Gregory, Marblebead, Mass., has decided this practical cultivator that "beets for cattle tood are well worth fully as many cents per bushel as good hay is worth dollars per ton, without taking into consideration the increase of the manure, and that the average cost, when stored in the cellar or put into pits, with every item of expense included, used not exceed eight cents per bushel.

A Profit ble Cow. Professor E W Stewart says that if a cow only produces 3,000 pounds of milk per annum, she is kept at a loss. A good cow, well fed, will yield 6,000 pounds of good milk, and the cost of producing this will be only one-eighth more than the 3,000 pounds from the poor cow. Without selection of cows, and judicious feeding, dairymen cannot receive anything worthy of their labor

A Cherry Experiment.

In a cherry experiment, conducted by the Ohio Experiment station entomologist, Clarence M. Weed, 22,500 cherries were individually out open and examined, and the conclusion reached that three-fourths of the cherries liable to injury by the curculio can be saved without danger to the user by spraying with a solution of Londo. TWO PLANS FOR KEEPING GRAPES.

Expenditure of Labor and Money. There are a number of methods in use for keeping the late varieties of grapes so as to lengthen the season for this fruit. These methods all depend for their success on the same conditions In the first place, it is desirable that the fruit shall retain its bloom, hence great care in handling it is necessary to prevent the branches coming in contact with each other. It is also necessary that imperfect or bruised berries be clipped from each bunch

Following are two simple but effective systems that may be utilized to advantage, whether the am unt of fruit to be saved be large or small. Both plans admit of the free circulation of an even temperature around each bunch and prevent the same from rubbing against each

The first method is to take new shoo or soap boxes, or any other box of about the same size, and mail cleats on the inside of the ends or sides about one inch from the top, and between them bars at various distances, as required by the varying length of the bearing shoot cuttings. The bars are made by nailing a small strip on top of each. As late as possible, cut off the bearing shoots containing the bunches, with pruning shears, and shorten them so that they will go between the end of the box and the top part of the bar, resting on the bottom part, thus hanging their bunches in their natural position. By this method the boxes can be handled without shaking the shoots off the bars, carried to the light, each bunch examined as winter advances, decaying berries or bunches removed, and the best kept without any moldy taste, as is so common when they are packed solid.

The second plan is equally simple. All that is required are two or more iron or wooden hoops, two lengths of wire to every two hoops to hold them in position and some string and the contrivance is complete. When hung up it is the easiest thing in the world to trim out decayed or useless berries, in fact, the stock of grapes can be kept in good condition without even shifting the contrivance at all.

The Value of Red Clover.

The value of red clover is too well known to need much said about it. It can grow easily in any of the southern states, and land should be planted with clover to rest and fertilize it, and by thus rotating between clover for two or three years and cultivated crops two years, the condition of the land would be gradually improved larger crops secured, and the clover would pay better while it occupied the land than almost any crop that could be grown, to say nothing of the great saving of expense in buying fertilizers, necessay under the present system of continually using the ground with the same

Simple Remedy for Thumps in Hogs. A correspondent in Southern Live Stock Journal gives the following as a remedy for thumps in hogs. Give one tablespoonful of vaseline, petroleum jelly (not car bonized). Repeat every twenty-four hours as long as necessary. The great advantage of the remedy, aside from its efficacy, is the case with which it is given. It is a job to drench a hog, but this vaseline slips down so easily that there is no time for strangulation. In extreme cases it is best to blister under neck and between front legs with cantharidal col-

Ma, are and Compost Piles.

The importance of saving manure and preventing its waste is generally understood, but the work is not generally performed in a systematic and economical manner. If manure is not drawn out and spread on the fields as fast as it accumulates, it is frequently thrown out or wheeled out and discharged in irregular heaps, where if it chances to become too dry by heating, or is washed into too liquid a condition by rains, the defect cannot be very easily corrected. If the liquid which has been saved is to be applied or poured on, it is often done too irregularly.

A MODEL MANURE PILE

Fig. 1 in the cut represents, says Country Gentleman, a manure pile where these objections are avoided. When the manure is wheeled out, the foundation is laid or the base formed in the shape of a regular parallelogram, by driving stakes at the corners; and if the pile is a large or long one, inserting stakes occasionally at the sides A wide plank, as shown at Fig. 2, allows the wheelbarrow to discharge its load, and one or more pieces of plank laid on the top facilitates the work. In this way, the manure is wheeled out and placed where it is wanted, with less labor than for an irregular heap. It is not necessary to make this heap very high, if suitable length or breadth is given to it.

Such a pile may be made more or less into a compost heap, by aproxima even elienating layers of my about bent, such as turf, loam, peat, &c. The thinner these layers are the more perfectly the ingredients will be intermixed when the heap rots down. Manure which is well worked together and pulverized after decomposition is more valuable than manure in unmixed chunks or lumps, and is more evenly spread on land

A very important requisite in saving and in manufacturing manure is to preserve the right degree of moisture in the heap. If a large quantity of straw litter has been used, it will need some liquid addition, either by leaving it exposed to rains or by turning the liquid manure upon it. These requirements, which will vary greatly with circumstances, will do cide whether to place the manure heaps under spacious shed or otherwise. This care will be particularly needed in the smaller heaps for garden use. In Fig. 1 hopper like holes are represented, which have been cut with a sharp spade after the heap was completed, into which water or other liquids may be poured to impart the right degree of moisture, to be ascertained by inspection.

This systematic management will easily admit the small addition of other tertilizers in thin layers, such as ground bone, plaster, lime, ashes and guano, to give additional strength. The manure thus manufactured will be of great value for many purposes, although a large propor-tion will be most conveniently and economically applied by spreading at once on the fields as it accumulates from the sta-

M'KINLEY'S NIGHT.

HE TELLS WHO PAYS THE TAX

And Clears Away the Mista and Obscurities that are Fastened to the Tariff by Pigmy Critics.

Pandemonium reigned in the streets Friday night. There were drums, horns and whistles that brought vivid recollection of some of the horrors of the Blaine campaign in the way of noise. The reception accorded McKinley was a sort of an informal one, in which everybody took part. Even the Young Men's Democratic club did honor to the gallant little man by appearing under yers glossy and very black silk hats.

The Republican marching clubs started pretty nearly on time, and, headed by Chief Marshal Pinn astride a coal black charger, and the McKinley drum corps. moved through the mud in good order and held together until the opera house was reached, noth withstanding that an alarm of fire was sounded while the parade was in progress. The opera house as usual, was packed. There were many ladies present, too. The Republican Glee club sang a couple of roundelays, and then Mr. Joseph Corns, who presided in the unavoidable absence of Mr. C. Russell, opened the meeting. lutroducing Major McKinley, Mr. Corns spoke of the boys of this country as being what they made themselves, the boys of foreign lands being what their fathers made them. And finally came McKinley.

Commencing in that almost inaudible tone of voice, which is a characteristic of McKinley, he quickly worked well into his subject, dealing it out in the earnest ring that commands equal at tention in the school houses of his own district, or the halls of Congress. Every campaign has a leading issue he declared and preeminently in this, it is the tariff. On this question the every act and argument of the Republican party stands on the side of the protection theory. while in its party platforms, its president's message, and leaders' speeches, the Democratic party is committed to a tariff for revenue. To secure the $360,-000,000 annually required to pay the ex penses of this government, from a revenue tariff, of necessity demands the taxation of such articles as cannot be produced in this country, and a rate of duty on competing wares, so low as to stimulate their importation. Exactly the reverse is true of the protective sysand a rate so high upon competing articles as to tend to check their importa-

But, say our Democratic friends, the consumer pays this tax, added to the cost abroad. "Now I turn to him," says payathe tax imposed by a revenue tariff?" This matter of cheapness altogether depends upon whether the consumer has the money with which to buy. And when you ask the revenue reformer, how in any one instance this tax is added to the cost of production, he must give it up. The speaker related a conversation held before entering the hall, with Messrs. Conrad and Hemperly, two Massillon hardware merchants. "What proportion of your present stock was manfuactured in America," he asked. "About 95 per cent," they both replied. Then he asked Mr. Conrad what the percentage of domestic goods was in 1860 or prior. "About 5 per cent," came the answer. "And how about prices," continued Mr. McKinley. "General prices on hardware were then from 25 to 45 per cent higher than to-day." "How," inquired the champion of protection, "does the consumer pay this tax?"

Another instance he related. It was the well-known war blanket story. The secretary of war accepted the bids of a sent into strange lands. He is a firm be-British manufacturer for army blankets liever in preparing natives who know at thirty cents per pair less than that of the lowest American bidder, the blankets to come in free of duty. Had those blankets paid the usual tribute, the home made blankets must have been ordered, and would have cost thousands of dollars less than the British article. "Here was a proof in Mr. Cleveland's own administration," shouted the speaker, "that his theory that the consumer pays the tax is fall acious. And what do you think anyway of an administration that goes abroad to buy blankets for the United States army, to save thirty cents a pair? When that incident was first made known, the secretary of war wrote me a letter, defending himself on the ground that it was his duty to buy where he could buy the cheapest, and that he would do it again, while here I hold in my hand an official order, issued under political stress, stating that in the future no foreign-made supplies will be purchased for the army. Well, we've made patriots out of them for one campaign, anyway 1"

Picking up the thread again, he at tacked the notion that we now need an outside market. When we have first captured our home market, and shut out the $750,000,000 of importations, then will be time to go abroad. As for free raw material, any manufacturer who desires to export can buy practically free raw material now. He called attention to an almost unknown section of the tariff law, allowing a rebate of pinty per cent in the duty on imported material manufactured here for export.

Mr. McKinley related a personal interview with a modern Dives who had out 1350 rails in eight hours last week, which quickly reduced to ashes a big peranoe.

"outgrown the United States," and who begailed the excessive tariff on French kid gloves. He held up James Russell Lowell as another of the same type. There was biting irony in his remarks under this head, that cut clean and true. Much in the same strain he went at the modern school of professional political economists, who desire a return to the "cheap" era of market commodities. There was an eloquent silence when he asked any one present who felt current prices to be too high to raise his hand. 'Cheap! I despise the word," said he. There is nothing of comfort or hope in it. The most dreary and miserable days of this country were when things were cheap and money was high and hard to

MR. SCHMIDT AND HIS POLITICS

A Trifle Taugled-Why He Marched Last Night.

John Schmidt, from the Patch, drove to town Friday night with Charley Krider. Brother Schmidt is a faithful Democrat. not very quick in his head, perhaps, but very zealous with his legs. Mr. Schmidt arrived in the city in due season, and beheld the Republican procession drawn up in martial array, and heard the viggrous sentiments go through the lines, "no free whisky, no free trade." Mr. tem. It believes in the admission free Schmidt's eve was tickled by the sight, of customs charges, of all the necessities and he fancied that in those Republican of life which cannot be found at home, battle cries he heard the notes of the "triumphant Democracy." And he straightway desired to sally forth under one of those star-bangled banner capes. No sooner was his wish expressed than granted. More than that, some one who knew him handed him a flag to carry, Mr. McKinley, "and again ask who and he marched out through the mud full of enthusiasm. Mr. Schmidt howled for protection, and he jeered at free trade. Finally the opera house was reached and three cheers were set up for Harrison.

> At the sound a flood of recollections poured over Mr. Schmidt, and he realized that he had been sold. He neither wept nor fainted. He was a Democrat. He swore. Mr. Schmidt et his feelings rip out in envenomed and impassioned language that can be imagined but not reproduced.

A Bright Young Jap.

The Rev. Fleming James, D.D., dean of Kenyon College, very acceptably filled St. Timothy, s pulpit last Sunday. One of his objects in coming here was to secure funds to assist in completing the education of Matoda, a young Japanese now preparing for the ministry at Kenyon. The hope of foreign missions is through a native ministry, declared Dr, James, and not through missionaries the idiomatic tongue, the wants and aspirations of the heathen, to turn them into the paths of Christianity. Matoda is such an one. This young fellow was said by Dr. James to be the most wonderful and promising student he had known during the twelve years he had been at Gambier. The boy came from Japan to the college nearly two years ago. He set about to prepare himself for college, a work which should have occupied five years. In a year and a half he not herent, but its intent manifest. He is only thoroughly prepared himself for college, but jumped the freshmen year altogether, and is now at the head of the sophomore class. He studies incessantly, is liked immensely, and the church looks forward to his tabors in his native country with great expectations.

HUNG IN JAIL.

John Klerst, the Alleged Incendiary,

COMMITS SUICIDE IN THE CITY JAIL

By Hauging Himself with his Blouse He was Weak-Minded, and Afraid of the Consequences of a Trial by Jury.

John Kierst, accused of having set fire to Mrs. Peter Corman's barn on Friday night, is dead. About 9 o'clock Sunday night Officers Maier and Kitchen visited the city jail, in which he was confined, pending the preliminary examination. Kierst spoke in German with Officer Mai er concerning the hour of his examinathe working men of America agreed to tion and other unimportant little details accept the wages of Europe, and live like connected with it. He was depressed in spirits, but gave no other indication of his feelings. The officers left and about 1 o'clock they both happened in to fix the furnace fire and see that all was well. When they turned to Kierst's cell, they could just see his body behind the occasion, and bowed his way back the grating, where it hung limp and lifeless. They quickly threw open the Mrs. Corman's description, and it can his hand, while the audience cheered cell door and turned on the light. While one officer remained with the body the other ran across the street to Dr. William Garrett, who pronounced the man dead. The body was warm, and it was evident that the policemen had not arrived much too late.

His feet touched the floor, and his upon his cot, took off his common jean blouse, tore it into strips, fastened one end to the top of the grating, and the other by a common knot around his neck, and jumped down. The job was a crude one, and he strangled to death, not by the tightening of the nocse, for he had the pressure of the rope upon his neck. The dead body was cut down and laid out and Coroner Cock was notified.

The coroner reached the city on the 4 o'clock train, and soon finished his labors. His verdict is in accordance with the foregoing facts, making it a plain case of suicide, to which the victim was impelled by fears of the corsequence of his crime.

There is a disposition to relieve the dead man of responsibility for an act, which, if proved against him, would have sent him to the penitentiary for from five to twenty years. It is said, and has not been controverted, that Kierst was weak-minded, though not in a marked degree. While working for Mrs. Corman be steadfastly refused to sleep in a bed in the house, preferring to pass the night on the straw in the barn. He was inoffensive though rather surly, and constantly talked to himself.

Organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored. The and was satisfied with a bare living. He was not dissipated, though he would occasionally fill himself up with beer. On these occasions he would purchase ten or more glasses at a time and have them set on a table in front of him. Then beginning at one end of the row he would drink his way to the end. In an interyiew with Coroner Cock, this afternoon. after he had examined all sides of the case, he, too, coincided with the opinion that the man was not morally responsible, and he goes farther and gives as his belief that the barn was not fired by Kierst. The coroner thinks that the crime was committed by some one else, and that the old German happened there at the time and was made a victim of circumstances. Dr. Cock says that Kierst left almost enough money to pay all the costs entailed. The man was married years ago to a widow named Witgand, who sub equently left him and is now at Mogadore. He has a daughter at Canton. His effects were in good order, and among them was found his naturalization papers, in which his name was spelled in the manner it has been in this article. Unfortunately the other testimony does not bear out this theory. Kierst was intelligent enough to be accountable for acts. He had high words with Mrs Corman last spring, and left her to work for a farmer on the Fulton ro d, named Stuhlareyer. He came to town Friday night, and walked up to Akron street Before entering the barn a witness heard him say that he would go to the penitentiary sooner than enter Mrs. Corman's house. His language was incopositively known to have been in the barn, and it was particularly noted that when the flames burst out, they came from all parts of the building at once, showing that the fire did not ignite in one spot.

More conclusive yet is the evidence of the merchants' policeman, Louis Stilke, who made the arrest. Stilke says that when he had traced him, he told Kierst to come along with him, but did not tell the man why he was wanted. Kierst immediately became very nervous, and repeated over and over again that he had not done it. Said he, "search me: This was a haven't any matches." tacit confession, and the officers very applied the match with a well defined reason for evening up some grudge.

The man was probably fifty-five years old, of medium height and weight, and seems to have been the butt of his acquaintances. His body was taken in charge by the township trustees, and was carried from the jail and buried without ceremony in the potter's field this affernoon.

Mrs. Peter Corman's Property Goes Up in Smoke.

For about an hour Friday night the sky was red with the reflection of the flames | Warner's Log Cabin Remedies and "Tip-red barn on Akron street, near the cor- Young Woman's Christian Temperporation line, owned by Mrs. Peter Corman. The barn, a building eighty feet long, and its contents was valued at about two thousand dollars. The destruction was complete, as the material was very inflammable. All the firemen could do was to prevent the flames from spreading The building was burned with ninety bushels of wheat, two hundred bushels of oats, four tons of hay, and a lot of farm implements owned by Philip Young. It was insured by Ryder's Agency for eleven hundred dollars, in the Dwelling House Insurance Company, of Boston. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin. When M's. Corman first came out of her house she saw a man with a light suit of clothes run from the barn and across the street.

As soon as Louis Stitke, the mer chants' policeman, learned of this incident, his suspicions lighted upon John Gish, who was at once arrested, and will be given a hearing on Monday. The marshal and his officers have since looked into the case, and the circumstantial evidence all points to the guilt of Gish. His clothing corresponds to probably be proven that he was seen in the barn just before the alarm was sounded. Gish worked for Mrs Corman tast spring, and while they never had trouble, she says that he was always disagreeable in manner. It is believed that he is rather weakminded. The Late Emperor's Diary,

No public document has of late attracted so much attention throughout all civilized countries as th letters of the late Emperor Frederick, of Germany They throw a light upon many important movement for which his father. Kaiser William, and Bismarck have herelofore received credit, and should still receive credit. However this may be, no recent publication has attached to it so great interest as this diary, not even Dr. MacKenzie's ancicipated book The Independent will print the diary in its entirety on Friday next. He fainted after the crash. and is in bad shape. He was made as comfortable as possible. Next, six or seven car lengths down the north-bound train, under a gondola, an injured brakeman who had been hurled there and bruised by failing coal, was pulled out and taken to the hospital car.

The list following embraces all who were wounded seriously enough to call for mention:

John Whitman, of Massillon, baggage master on No. 5, has an ugly hole in his head, leg, back and neck hurt.

George B. Clyde, of Lorain, brakeman on No. 20, has a cut on his head and is bruised all over.

No. 5 is the south-bound express leaving Massillon at 6.00 a. m She was pulled out this morning by en gine No. 12, with Conductor B. N. Utterback, Engineer Lynch, and Fireman H. Bast in charge. She left on time, and was going about twenty-five miles an hour when turning the series of curves below the glass works. The reason for the meeting is clear enough, and the crew on No. 5 is entirely blameless. No. 20, the coal train, was manned by Conductor Josh Davy, who has been on the road a very short time, Engineer Harry Hunt, an old timer, and Fireman J. Page. The conductor and engineer are jointly responsible for their charge, and in this instance the conductor ignorantly or carelessly allowed his train to run on an old time schedule, which on Monday last was replaced by a new one. The engineer did not notice, and so could not correct the error, the result was a collision with No. 5, which was running on proper

The engineer resigned by telegraph and the conductor probably will do so. Most people think that they will be allowed to go, but THE INDEPENDENT has it from one railroader that they will hkely be retained. The C., L. & W. has been having trouble with its conductors recently, on account of pay, and Davy is one of the new-comers, who formerly ran on the N. Y., P. & O.

About 8:30 No. 5's cars were backed up to the station and Whitman was taken home. The road will not be cleared betore night, if then. Pending that time, passengers will be transferred and freight traffic will be blocked.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE. Dore Davidson at the Opera House Mondey Night.

Whatever may be said hereafter, the performance of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde last night, ought to be considered good. This applies to play and players. Influenced by the impressions of the wonderful Stevenson book, or stories of Richard Mansfield, a fairly large audience went prepared to be horrified, and go away with material lor bad dreams. And because these unreasonable anticipations were but half realized, many turned back half disappointed. Yet they should have remembered that it was the manitestation of Hyde's evil nature that made him so repulsive in the book, white in face and form he was not so different from other men. It seems as though Mr. Dore Davidson compromised between the conception of the author and the expectation of his auditors. He is handicapped by a not too good version of the work.

DEATH OF MRS. S. E. HARSH.

The tiketch of a Well Known and Ex

ceilent Weman.

The citisens of Massillon were t ken by surprise and astonishment on Menday evening and Tuesday morning, to learn of the death of Mrs. Sarah E. Harsh, wife of the Hon. George Harsh. Mrs. Harsh's death occurred on Monday night at 7 o'clock; and while her death might have been reasonably expected from her long illness, it came suddenly and found all, except herself, upprepared for so sad an event. She had been so long identified with the prominent movements for the benefit of society, that she will be long missed and her memory tenderty cherished by the wide circle of friends and acquaintances that her great excellence of character constantly drew about her and within her circle, which was large enough to en:-

brace all who came within her influence Mrs. Harsh was a native of Muncie. Lycoming county, Pa, the daughter of Job and Jane McCarty, was the sister of Mrs. Mary A. Watson, wife of Dr. Joseph Watson, of this city, by, the second marriage of their mother with Job McCarty. By birthright Mrs. Harsh was a member of the Society of Friends. commonly called Quakers, the remains of her parents having their last rest in Friends' cemetery in Kendal, now the fourth ward of this city, where many of "The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

In 1844 Sarah E. McCarty and George Harsh were married, she having previous to that time united with the Methodist Episcopal church, and of which she has ever been a valued and valuable member. She was the almoner of the poor and needy, who never went away emp'ybanded from an application to her for aid. Her life's history in that respect is well illustrated by a remark made in presence of the writer on the street on hearing of her death, "many a poor person will regret that she is gone." The person who made the remark knew whereof he spoke, and his utterance will find a ready response in the hearts of Loving hearts and tender hands administered to her wants during her protracted illness, and many a tear will bedew the flowers that shall ornament her final resting place. Her husband, the only surviving member of his family, has the sympathy of many devoted friends for this and his repeated afflictions of a similar character. The funeral took place from the M. E. church, corner of East and Main streets, on Thursday at 10 o'clock a. m.

Occupying a leading position from the start, his practice developed into such proportions as to become unwieldy, and thosè who have been under his care are not accepting his departure in a pleasant spirit. As a business man, there are many improvements and numerous buildings for which he alone is responsible. His career here has been a successful one, and it is unfortunate that circumstances should abruptly terminate it. Mrs. Royer's health is such that the milder climate of California must be sought, and coupled to this is a desire of the Doctor to get away from the horrible country roads of Stark county, over which body and buggy are racked to an unbearable degree. Washington, October 11.-The feature of he House proceedings yesterday was the adoption of the conference report on the general deficiency bill, the last of the appropriation bills.

Resolution was adopted asking the Secretary of War for intormation as to the necessity for the proposed bridge across the Ohio river between Louisville, Ky., and Jeffersonville, Ind.

Several members attempted to call up bills for consideration, but the point of no quorum was raised in each case.

Mr. Daugherty entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which the electoral count bill was passed. On the vote on a motion to lay this motion on the table the point of no quorum was raised. Objection was made to a request of Mr. Burns, of Missouri, that he be allowed offer a resolution requesting the turn of the bill to the House. The speaker said that the House never lost control of its own business and when the committee on controlled bills should report the bill, the House could refuse to receive the report or to authorize the speaker to sign the measure. Mr. Burns called up the conference report on the deficiency bill; Mr. Daugherty was induced to withdraw his opposition and the report was agreed to. The House at 1:40 adjourned until Friday.

THE SENALE. The feature of the Senate proceedings esterday was a speech by Senator Bate on the tariff question.

Mr. Hale presented the report of the select committee on the operation of the civil service law. He said that the minority report would be presented hereafter.

Mr. Allison presented a resolution instructing the committee on the improvement of the Mississippi river to investigate the complaint made in a memorial presented by him that the Union Pacific bridge at Omaha is an obstruction to navigation. This resolution was adopted; also. a resolution instructing the foreign relations committee to report whether or not arrangements can be made to transport American export cattle through Canada without the present quarantine delay.

The joint resolution relative to the yelthe Senate yesterday was passed.

The bill to pay $8,745 to the widow of Chief Justice Waite was taken up and debated at some length by Senators Hoar and Call, who favored its passage, and by Senators Coke, George and Barry, who opposed On the passage of the bill, Mr. Barry withdrew his call for the year and nays, because as no quorum was present it would have interfered with other business. The bill was passed without discussion.

The Senate passed the House bills anthorizing the construction of railroad bridges across the Porteau river, Arkansas, the Kentucky river and its tributaries and the Coosa river at Gadsden, Alabama; also the House bill for the relief and civilization of the Chippewa Indians in Minnesota.

At 1:45 the Senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill. Mr. Bate, of Tennessee, took the floor.

The Mills bill, he said, was antagonistic to free trade, inasmuch as it proposed to raise a greater part of the revenue through duties on imported goods. He said it was to be remarked that the reduction made by the Senate bill was in the products of agriculture and the increase in those of manufactures. At the conclusion of Mr. Bates' speech, Mr. Cullom took the floor, but further consideration of the tariff question was postponed until to-day.

A joint resolution introduced by Mr. ments to send to the Paris exposition of 1889 articles for exhibition, was criticised by Mr. Hoar as "unmeaning," and utterly unworthy of the Senate. Mr. Dolph said that it had been prepared at the State department. The resolution was placed on the calendar.

After a short secret session, the Senate, at 4:25, adjourned.

The Great Rive in Bread.

CHICAGO, October 11.-The second advance in the price of bread, decided upon by the German bakers on Sunday, went into effect yesterday. The best white bread is now seven cents per pound, and the common grades of white and rye bread is six cents per pound. The English bakers have followed suit, and no reduction to the old rates may be expected until next spring. Coal will also be advanced in the course of another week, and altogether, the outlook for the poor this winter is a doleful one.

This is what many people thought lessly ay when urged by their friends to take a medicine for some slight but growing ailment. The person addressed rests in fancied security, while some powerful disease may be undermining his health. He may not notice slight troubles, which are very noticeable to friends. or may imagine them to be merely of slight and temporary character. So he keeps putting off taking proper precaution, as thousands have done bpfore, until the disease gains so firm a hold upon the yetem that a cure is impossible. Important Business Change.

It is a matter of very general regret that such a thoroughly enterprising firm as that of Traphagen & Kramer, proprietors of the transfer line, carriage furnishers and bill posters, has dissolved, and of congratulation that one member is left to carry on a business which has grown from almost nothing to one of commanding proportions through wise management and modern methods. It was stated some time ago that much against his will and owing to the precarious condition of his wife's health, it would be necessary for Mr. C. S. Traphagen to move to some milder climate, and that determination has been followed by a sale of his share in the business to his partner, Henry V. Kramer. The two young men have almost grown up together and have been in business together for eight years, and the separation is not therefore attended by any feelings of personal satisfaction. Mr. Traphagen will leave to-morrow or next day for California, where he will seek a location. Mr. Kramer will conduct the business as he well knows how.

ENGINEER GRAY Consults with the Sewer Commis-

He has secured figures from Engineer Miller and will go home to Providence, R. I., and will submit a written report and recommendation. To the sewer commissioners he has not expressed himself. He tells them to wait for his report, and if they then see fit, they can further employ him as consulting engi-

In conversation with Dr. Gray after he had finished his inspection, he stated that his communication to the city would not only cover the pipe system, but would include a recommendation as to sewage disposal. Whether that recommendation would be irrigation, precipi-John Rieker and Miss Tillie Kohl tation, or crude discharge into the river, were married Thursday in St. Mary's he could not say. AN ORGAN FACTORY.

J. T. Brown Will Start It

J. T. Brown, the piano dealer, left for Chicago yesterday, where he will purchase material with which be will return to Massilion and commence the manufacture of organs, under the style of the Etna Organ Company. At first he will purchase cases, keys and other compoment parts, and will have them put together here, employing skilled mechanics, tuners and voicers for the purpose, but his intention is to make everything himself as soon as possible. He has sole control of J. H. Dawling's patent double reed, by which two vibrations can be had for the cost of one. The business will be small at first, but as soon as Mr. Brown gets his hand in he expects to invest every cent he bas. He will start up in this city, but whether he will remain when he gets ready to build on a large scale depends upon the action of the business men. He proposes to demonstrate that he can make and sell his instruments before submitting any sort of a proposition

The Daughters of Veterans.

A special meeting of Mrs. Major Mc-Kinley Tent No. 1, Daughters of Veterans, was held Tuesday night to consider an application for a charter, from Prairie Depot, Wood county, O. The application was tavorably considered, and on Saturday, Miss Olive Howald will depart, to muster in the tent. This order, established in Massillon by a number of bright-headed girls, now has three tenis; one in Massillon with forty members, one in Alliance and one in Prairie Depot. The prospects are that many others will be organized in Pennsylvania and bership becomes greater, a national del egate body will probably be formed, to take action upon such subjects.

Coal Contract Let.

A special meeting of the board of education was held on Wednesday to let the coal contract for the year. The lowest bid was that of the West Massillon Co...l Company. The coal is to be delivered at the various district schools as needed. The proposals were as follows:

West Massillon Coal Company: lump, $2,29; nut, $1.70; slack, $1.00.

Youngstown Coal Company: lump, $2,35; nut. $2,00; slack, $100. Sippo Coal Company: lump, $2.39;

GREAT HORSES OF THE YEAR. Wonderful Flyers Who Have Raced Inte Herse Is L ke-How Sam Bryant Came to Own Proctor Knott, Winner of the Rich Futurity Stakes—Some Good Purses -A Peep at Blooded Animals and Their

VERY day in summer, says the New York World, a gaunt, broken - spirited old horse may be seen jogging along the beautiful turnpike between Versailles and Lexington, Ky, drawing after him an old buggy. He is callous to shout and whip. His eyes are dim, and his once glossy coat has been burned by the sun into a rough, brick-dust red. Yet the old fellow sometimes pricks his ears up and unexpectedly dashes away at full speed, especially when another horse goes galloping by. On these occasions the old horse seems to remember that a few years ago he was the pride of the turf, and he hears ringing in his ears the hoarse shouts of the thousands when he swept under the string with every nerve and muscle strained to the utmost, winner by a head, defeating the renowned Hindoo, prince of racers and of stallions, after the fiercest of contests. For the name of this shabby old discrowned king of the turf is Checkmate, and his life and his present condition are an epitome of the race-horse. Looking at old Checkmate jogging along the quiet country road, and glancing over the brilliant racers of the past season, one can not help thinking that they are all running with enexampled speed, because they have time and tide both with them, straight for old Checkmate's place, though most of them may not find such pleasant quarters.

But the season in many respects has been an exceptionally brilliant one Never before were the stakes so large, the contests so close, the betting so high, the uncertainty so great, the crowds so large. There have been no three-year-olds like Hanover and Kingston, no two-year-olds like Tremont, but there has been a general average of time racing. In a number of instances the record has been touched, and several times it has been lowered. New records have been made for four distances. Daniel B. at Helena, M. T. made threeeighths of a mile in 0/4 ; Wheeler T. ran a mile and one-sixteenth at St. Louis in 1:474: Terra Cotta, with 124 pounds, ran one and one-eighth unles at Succepshead Bay in 1:53, and Triboulet in San Francisco and Richmond at Sheepshead Bay made one and three-eighth unle in 2.21%.

Considering all things, the greatest horse the season has produced is Firenzi, Mr. Haggin's four-year-old bay filly by Glenelg. out of Florida. She has started during the season sixteen times and has won nine times. The last six times she has faced the starter she has won. She has demonstrated that she has all the race-horse qualities. She can cover distance, carry weight and has unlimited speed. She has beaten the best horses in the East in a number of closely-contested battles and has won for her owner $28.356 She has won the Great Long Island Stakes, the Average Stakes, the Monmouth Handicap, the Champion Stakes, the Freehold Stakes, the Monmouth Cup and many other less notable events. She ran third in the Suburban.

In talking of the three-year-olds, Western turfmen say: "Oh, yes, Kingston and Hanover and The Bard were all great horses, but if the Emperor had just held up!" Truly, his career was like a meteor. His last eight races were an unbroken line of victories, and in the other two races that he lost he was placed. From the Troubadour Stakes at Nashville early in the spring to the American Derby in Chicago last summer, he faced and defeated the best threeyear-olds East and West. He may never hear the drum tap again, but he deserves to be named in the first class. He is a bay colt, by Norfolk, out of Marian, and is owned by "Lucky" Baldwin-

The greatest of the sound three-year-olds is Los Augeles, who has a record of ten victories out of eighteen starts, and who has won for her owner $25,952. She is also owned by Baldwin, and is a chestnut filly by imported Glenelg out of La Polka. She was the first thly to win the Latonia Derby, and in addition to that she won the Monmouth Oaks, the Kansas City Oaks, the Jersey Handicap, the Kenner Stakes, the Foxhall Stakes, the Pocahontas Stakes and a number of handicaps.

It is to this year's two-year-olds that the lovers of the sport must look for the great flyers of the coming year. Some of them have made remarkable records. In many instances the best time of the year has been made by two year-olds, notably Proctor Knott's Junior Championship time of 1:14, Galen's half mile over the Washington Park track in 0 48 and his five eighths a few weeks later in 1 of 1.

The most sensational of the two yearolds and the greatest money winner since Tremont is unquestionably Proctor Knott. There are any number who claim that he can and will be beaten by Salvator and Faverdale cont if they meet next year. But Proctor Knott has demonstrated his ability to travel fast, carry weight and win rich stakes -some very handy things in a racehorse. Whatever may be said of the Futurity, he unquestionably won the Junior Champion in remarkably fast time and showed his heefs to a clever gang of youngsters. A year ago Sam Bryant and a number of Eastern horsemen were at the Bello Meade sale, when a scrawny, a degreeouslooking little yearing was brong a out and offered for sale. His pedigree. Lulas Blackburn out of Tall mousa, was good, but none of the turfmen | Led the appearance of the ragged little follow and there was no bidding. Bryant got him for $500 Br, ant gon, The Loness, Blessing, Fresno, Rewas accompanied by an old mule trader, Scroggins, who helped him out once or twice when he was in a hole, and who had an interest in Bryant's stable. He was violently opposed to Sam's paving as much ingly: "You had better have his picture taken, Sam; he is too handsome to let ga." "Make a jumper of him," said "Bill" Barnes, the handsome blonde giant who owns the Melbourne stable; "if he fails he is too ugly to hurt himself."

'Sam, he is as tough-looking as you are," said Major Hughes, of Louisville, and so the chaffing went on. But Bryant doggedly persisted in saying he saw a great race horse in the colt, and he has never been shaken in that belief since. Bryant lost a great deal of money on his horse at first, because when the horse won he was not on him, and when he would select a race to plunge on the horse would be beaten. Proctor Knott has started nine times and won six, and in those six races he brought his owners in $69,065. He started at Nashville last spring and won the West Side Stakes; he followed it up by winning the Alexander. Then he was beaten in the Runnymede and lost two more races. It was evident something was the matter with the horse, and a veterinary surgeon prescribed rest. He was not started again for some time, and finally was taken to Chicago, where he won the Kenwood Stakes. Bryant about this time determined to bring him East and try to win the two richest stakes of the year, the Junior Champion and the Futurity. His friends laughed at him, but he was obstinate. His partner, old Scroggins, strenuously objected to the expense, but Sam insisted. The record of the horse in the East was a most sensational one. In quick succession he won the Junior Champion, the Equity Stakes at Saratoga and the Futurity, and Bryant, refusing many heavy offers for the prodigy, started back home, accompanied by old Scroggins, who was almost speechless with joy.

At the beginning of the season it was expected that Mr. Morrissey's French Park would sweep every thing before him. From his first race, at Lexington, where he made an exhibition of a field of twelve in the Diviana last May, until June 11, when he ended his brilliant season by winning the Encore stakes at Jerome Park, carrying 123 pounds and cantering away from Heliday, Isablo and Gypsy Queen, he never lost a race. Seven times he faced the starter, and six out of the seven he won so casily that it seemed like play to him. The nearest he ever came to losing was making a dead heat with Fides for the Juvenile Stakes. He won for his owner $14.350. The stakes he won were the Dixiana, Breeders, Bedford, May, Sequence, Encore and Juvenile. He is a splendid-looking bay colt, by King Ban, out of Lou Pike He was bred by Major Thomas, from whom Mr. Morrissey bought him for $5.000 Mr Morrissey sold him a few days ago, it will be remembered, for $12,000, which would indicate that his leg is again sound. If he is able to face the starter again next year he will "cause some excitement." as his former owner used to sav.

Another of the crack two-year-olds is Galen, who was bred by his present owners, Gray & Co He is a chestnut colt, by Faustus, out of Lady Restless He ran very well in Chicago, where he was regarded as the certain winner of the Futurity. When he started in that great race he

s said to have carried $20,000 of stable money on his back. He made a gallant struggle, coming in third. He started in a two-year-old purse race in Chicago, where he ran second to Monsoon, beating eighteen others. A few days afterwards he won the Quickstep Stakes in the fast time of 0:48, beating a field of sixteen. He also won the Flight Stakes in very fast time, 1:01%. He is a wonderful sprinter, but whether he can ever go distance with first-class horses remains to be demonstrated. He won for his owners $5,200.

Salvator, the second horse in the Futurity, and one that many consider the best two-year-old of the year, is owned by J. B. Haggin, and is a fine-looking chestnut colt. by imported Prince Charlie, out of Salma. He was bred by the Swigerts, who sold him to Mr. Haggin for $4,500. Mr. Haggin reserved him for the Junior Champion, and when he started him sent a heavy commission into the ring. The horse had made some remarkable trial performances, just how good the public did not know, for Mr. Haggin is exceedingly close in every thing that concerns his stable. There are few horses that can start for the first time against seasoned campaigners and win, and Salvator was no exception. He ran a good race and came in a strong third. In the Futurity he was only beaten by a scant bead, and his admirers claim that if the riding had been what it should have been be would have won easily. Considering that this was his second appearance, his performance can not but be regarded as remarkable. In his third and last appearance so far this season he had a good jockey, Barnes; he was in a measure seasoned, and be won the Flatbush Stakes, worth $5,450, in a canter. He beat such good ones as Madstone, Fresno and Champagne Charlie. The last two victories of Mr. Withers' still unnamed Sensation-Faverdale coit prove that he has carned a name, and a good one. The colt is a stranging brown solt and is a home bred. He won the Hopeful Stakes and the Tyro Stakes, and ran secand to French Park in the Sequence and to lipstaff in the Sapling He was second to Proctor Knott in the Junior Champion, and 36 has wen for his owner the snug little #um of $17,190.

Another good two-year old is Diablo, by Eclus, out of Grace Darling, a fine-looking bay, who has won the Coney Island Sweep-Makes, the June Stakes and the Great Eastern Handwap. He has brought to the Castle stable STA during three money, and may be regarded as a daugerous horse next year. Then there are grouped together abunch that may do conders next year, for they shave done we had times this season-Oreporter and Once Assim-

Casting a refine metric and a prospective we over the lorg and noble array of the fallant crowd of thoroughbreds, may it be a ong time before any of them, from the treatest of all, The Burd, to the youngest performer on the turf, the Salvator, join old Theckmate in his ignoble obscurity.

ATTACHMENTS FORMED IN CONGRESS BETWEEN GREAT MEN.

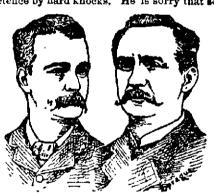

Pair of Senatorial Chums - The Blond Twins of the House-Senator Stanford to Retire-The Smallest Manin Congress - Some Queer Attach-

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 .- There is no more gress than Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin. He himself from the senate, much to his impastient regret. His former twin-senator, Stanford, of California, has long absented himself, and Siwyer has missed him very much. Together, they were the portriest men in the senate, and would outweigh Saulsbury, Spooner, Ingalls and Brown combined. Sawyer's wealth of waist and breadth of beam would be ample for aldermanic instead of cenatorial position. He is a splendidly companionable man possessed of fascinating conversational powers. Although past 70 years of age, he is not garrulous; but as he grows older he grows fonder of the compantonship of his friends, especially his younger acquaintances. He has secured the passage of more pension bills than any other two secutors, and has many pensioners upon his saved him from nomery. His entire salary is ev ended in the employment of clerks who aid him in his pension work, and, in additionthereto, he gives away about $7,000 annually in small charities. He never makes a speech. It would be impossible for him to do so, and that is the reason he never made the effort. Uncle Phileaus is not an ignis fatuus hunter. He will not try unpossibilities. Recently, when asking consideration of a pension bill, he undertook to briefly announce the men of the case. Beck, of Kentucky, objected to his statement, saying: "I am willing to vote 'aye' upon the question without debute.' Bewyer sat down, and the bill passed without any questions from any source. Afterward Sawyer went to Beck and plaintively said: "Why did you object to my statement?" "Because," replied Book, "if we ever let you get started, you'd talk all night." It was a bit of good humored saieasm from the Scotch-American senator, which meant, in liberal translation: "Sawyer, you can't make a speech, but you are honest and we'll vote for what you want anyway,"

Senator Stanford, the California senatorial heavy weight, does not like his place in th senate. They say that he wanted the hoper of an election, and of course his desire was gratified. But he is out of his element Coming from the business into the political would was a transition too great for him, and he is not content. No sooner was he scat-of in that great legislative body than he found himself associated with people who were peculiar from his standpoint. They talked of politics and party preferments; but few of them would talk business, pure and simple. In the railroad world Leland Stanford is a king. No one disputes his judgments or beliefs. Here in the senate he finds Edmunds, Harris, Allison, Call and others who know comparatively little about railroads and grand financial transactions; yet these gentlemen are more than his peers on all questions. He is smaller than they. It is like transferring a Napoleon to Eiba. He is out of place, or feels that he is, and that amounts to thing. It is understood that he will soon retire from the senate by resignation. If he does so it will go hard with Uncle Phil Sawyer for awhile. Of all the men in the senate, Stanford has a great love for Sawyer. He finds in the Wisconsin senator a crude business man who has gained more than a competence by hard knocks. He is sorry that so good a man as Sawyer should spend his last days in the senate; but he loves him just the some. They like the same kind of wine, too, and they smoke the same brands of eigars.

Gen. Wheeler, of Alabama, is the smallest as well as the shortest man physically in the house. He is a very little man, indeed, but he is an intellectual giant, not inferior to Alexander H. Stophens. Wheeler was a heutenant-general in the Confederate army when he was only 21 years old; and at one time he commanded the entire Confederate cavalry. Federal officers always regarded h m as a dangerous foe to meet upon the field. In the house he is quiet and unobtrusive; but whenever there is any measure before congress in which he is specially interested by is heard. Nothing can daint him. It is recorded of him that one morning when he had a matter of special interest to his constatuents, on private full day, he raised a storm because he was unable to catch the speaker's eye. Patientiyand unostentatiously he endeavored to get a hearing from noon until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Then, walking down the aisle in front of the speaker. when other members were securing recognation and passing bills by unanimous consent, he shouted: "I object" again and again to til every member who had matters engaging their attention were obliged to stop and sneeqmb to the sharp, burtling, effect vewords of objection from the little man from Althama. Then he got recognition, and d mended the passage of his bill by unancnous consent. It was done. Gen. Wheeler was determined to be the one solitary determined objector who should stop all the legislation in the house until he secured recognition. Inasmuch as he seldom pushes himself aggressively forward, the matter was noticed and commented upon; and since that day, whenever Wheeler wants the house to hear and favor him, he finds little trouble. It is a hurly burly place, and a man must become recognized as a fighter before he receives the wholesome respect of his colleagues.

Stewart, of Texas, is the tallest man, and Birnes, of Georgia, is the heaviest, while Ingalls is the thinnest man in congress. The most learned political lender on the Repubhean side of the house is McKinley, of Ohio, and Tom Reed, of Maine, is the wittest and most sareastic. On the Democratic cole, John photographer, and not infrequently is recolves compliments for the excellent likenesses which he has taken; and that makes him mid. Bell, on the contrary, is sometimes complimented for some with speech, and that gratifies him and wreather his happy face in smiles. Bell is pleased with his likeness to Reed, and when approached and called "Mr. Reed," he reminds me of a western cornfield, by grinning from our to ear. Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, is one of the likable or lovable man in either house or con-remarkable men of the house by reason of his extensive fund of information upon all has been ill recently, and compelled to absent topics of public policy. No matter what subjeet happons to be sprung unexpectedly upon the "Cave of the Winds," as Don Piat designated the popular branch of congress, Gen. Weaver is always ready to intelligen by and instructively debate it. His memory remarkable. He will quote from speechdelivered a decade ago, refer to books and pamphlets which bear upon the subject and clearly state his own position, giving amply sufficient reasons for the conclusions which he reaches. There is an aggressiveness and soldier-like air about him which is sometimes commented upon in a critical spirit; but those who know him best know that he is tolerance, charity, and conciliation persont fled. His friends cling to him as a lead a and his political opponents respect him to Congressman Bob Vance, of Connecticut

Democrat, and Richard Guenther, of W scon-

sin, Republican, are the closet friends in the noise. They are both blonds, both hard iome, bright and lovable. Moreover, were: within the bounds of propriety, it might said that they are given to playing promas and practical jokes upon each other, like col-tege lower classmen. For instance, Guenther recently returned one evening from an extended visit to his home at Oshkosh. After going to his hotel, he started to call on Vance. On the way he met Amos Cummings, and they walked together up Fourprivate bounty. Generous to a fault, nothing to nth street toward Vance's rooms. On the way they met a crowd of colored boys, ranging in ages from 4 to 16 years. They were man bing with wooden maskets and shrilly howing tin whistles. They were playing sordier, "Hold on," said Guenther, give Vance a seronade." Thereupon Guenther and Cummings hired the little darkies to march in front of Vance's residence, play a tune and shout: "Three cheers for Congressman Bob Vance, of Connecticut. Hurrali, hurrah, hurrah! Tigor!" The little fellows carried out their instructions to the letter, and were paid for their services. Vance did not respond to the seronade, but he heard that evening that Guenther had returned. The next morning the New York Sun and the World contained announcements of the great screnade which had been tendered Vance "by the Trotter Guard, of Washington." And when Guenther came down-stairs to breakfast next morning, he was handed an express package which seemed rather heavy for him, and he wrote across the address: "In care of Congressman Vance, No. 608 Fourteenth street," and the package was returned to Vance, who had sent it. It contained two excellent, wellformed, symmetrical red brickbats and nothing else. But Vance says he will get even on that serenade, and he probably will.

GERMANY'S STOLEN GEM.

The Seizure of Samoan Islands, Which Ought to be Ours.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. E are acting very strangely about Samoa. Samou was getting along very well without us on her beautiful and luxuriant island helf way between America and Asia when first our missioparies and then our men-of-war went down there. The Simoans wers very hospitable. They gave their hearts to the missionaries-their herbors to the men-of-war. They liked the American's from the first, and apparently the Americans liked them. They are a strong smeere people of high natural ability and deep natural morality. They have not been spoiled by their contact with civilization. They have not been greatly changed except in religion. They have kept their eld custom of thought and of dress and all their conventional manners as strictly as the three languages which make their castes. They seem as simple and steadfast as childrin. Of late years England and Germany, which seem determined to gobble up between them all the unprotected spots on the globe, have been looking hungrily at the Samoan Islands. as well as at the Hawaiian Islands and the Tonga group. The three groups have the best harbors in the Pacific ocean. Each has peculiar advantages as a stopping place between America and Asia. When a canal is cut through the isthmus or across Nicaragua their value will be increased fifty-fold, But as it is to nations like these, with teeming populations and large navies, war and merchant, they are very tempting. There can be no doubt that England and Germany have made up their minds to seize them. Now, the United States has solemn treaties with Hawaii, Samoa and Tonga, in which the promises to maintain their autonomy and independence from the aggressions of outoders. It is its duty to see that England does not get absolute control of Hawaii, or Germany of Samoa. It is the duty of congress to recognize this International obligation and provide ships and guns to nice with it. Yet congress sits squabbling about home polities, without ever taking time to read thouble and interesting reports on the Samoan situation, for if they read them they could not help acting on them at once. Take Lighteen months ago five German men-ofwar sailed into the harbor of Apia,the capitol. The commodors of the fleet made a perumptory demand upon the king, Malietoa, for $12,000 damages -$10,000 for a German resident whose nose was broken in a street a mabble, and $2,000 for some fruit stolen from another German resident's garden $4,000 for fruit in the very land of fruit, where ten tons could be bought for half that amount II was a mere pretense, of course, and claim is probably because the German commo lore hought it would never be questioned else where, Malietoa's treasury had no surple $12,000. Even if it had had be would be: have vielded it up without the customary deliberation of his race. As it was, he had every reason for saying to the commodic representative, as he did, that the must this consult his chiefs and his people. Theremoon the German commodore declared war against the king personally, and not against the Samoan nation.

Our consul at Apia, Harold Sewall, is here o lay the atuation before the government It remains for congress to take such neuron a will at once redeem our pledges to the Samoany and conserve our own interests in the islands. Some day we shall have greater to -dom of trade with lower tariff taxation than now. Then we shall have American ships carrying our commerce across the Pacific again, and Sainoa will be invaluable as a stopping place for our morehant vessels as at G. Carlisle is conceded to be the most in el. is new for our naval vessels. But if German; lectual, and Sunset Cox the wittest and most | gets sentrol of it now we shall be shut on

Some inside facts regarding the postoffices in this county are dug out of the complete report of the postmaster general for the year ending March 31, 1887. For instance, the rent paid in Massillon is one dollar per annum; in Canton, $1,000; Alliance not quoted. The total paid in Massillon for salary and allowance was $3,528; in Canton, $6,350. The net revenue secured from Massillon was $6,864.21; from Canton, $19,457.48; from Alliance, $5,249.42; from Akron, $23,..

Reducing the Surplus.

The disposition of the surplus in the United States treasury engages the attention of our statesmen, but a more vital question has our attention, and that is the reduction of the surplus consumptives. Since the discovery and introduction of Dr. Kirg's New Discovery for consumption, there has been a marked decrease in the mortality report from this dreaded disease, and it is possible to still further reduce the number of consumptives. How? By keeping constantly at hand a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and using according to directions, upon the appearance of the first symptoms, such as a cough, a cold, a sore throat, a chest, or side pain, taken thus early a cure is guaranteed. Trial bottles free at Baltzly's drug store.

The Coal Trade Journal explains the beautiful system of natural gas charges about to go into effect at Pittsburg: "At first the companies were content to charge for only the number of grates or stoves in which gas was burned. They have changed that mode and adopted the system of house-measurement, so that consumers as their contracts expire, will be required to pay for the area heated and not by the fire-place. The same rate is charged for a six-room house if only one heater is used as is charged if six fires are kept constantly burning. The People's Natural Gas Company takes square measure as a basis of computing rates, while the Philadelphia Company uses cubic measure, but there is practically no difference in the result obtained by each."

There is no denying the fact that Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tome is the most successful blood purifier ever put on the martet. It's wonderful cures in all stomach, kidney and liver troubles hae brought out out many imirations. It restores many debilitated nerve tissues, restoring the force lost by sickdess, mental work, or excessive ase of liquor, opium and tobacco. Z. T. Baltzly will supply the genuine at 50 cents

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

Harrison's Manly Utterances-Cleveland's Cowardly Silence—Mark the Contrast. Will those of our fellow citizens who have harped so much upon the respective views of President Cleveland and General Harrison on the subject of Chinese immigration, says the San Francisco Chronicle, be kind enough to contrast the utterances of the two candidates on this the banks and $2,500,000 from workingsubject as they are found in their letters of acceptance of the presidential

As we predicted some time ago Mr. Cleveland did not dare to mention the subject of Chinese immigration in his letter of acceptance for two reasons; first, because he was afraid of the mugwumps, who are fonder of the Chinamen than of the American workingman; and second, because he was afraid of his own party on the same question. Search the letter of acceptance from top to bottom, and not one word can be found about the Chinese question

General Harrison's declaration, on the contrary, is sharp, clear-cut and positive.

Another One of Them. Another of Governor Hoadley's staff as come out "from among the foul party" and will vote for young Tippecanoe. An East Liverpool O., telegram of Sept. 27, says:

Col. W. C. Watson, late of Governor ♦ Hoadly's staff, says: "For nine years my spare time has been employed in apologizing for the Democratic party for their blunders, crimes, and blackguardism; it is a well known fact that nineteen-twentieths of the manufacturers, merchants, mechanics, and the best laboring men who have always been ready to put their shoulders to the wheel for the progress of East Liverpool are now Republicans.

Col. Marcus Barclay, of Washington, C. H., who was also one of the Democratic members of Governor Hoadly's staff has also declared himself for Harrison and Morton. And ex-Governor Hoadly has himself announced that he is not taking shuff or wearing a red bandanna this year.

Sixty Cents a Day.

"While in Brussels, Belgium, last summer," said W. H. Perkins, "I saw some skilled laborers making spiral steel car springs' such as we use on our freight cars. They receive sixty cents per day, while our blacksmiths receive $2 for the same work. I asked the Belgian proprietor why he didn't pay more. He said: 'I am handicapped. When I get $100 worth of car springs into New York harbor (for I sell my car springs in America) I have to salute your Yankee flag and give up $50." " "'Where does that come from?' I

This tells the whole story How any wage-earner in the country can vote for President Clevelaud's re-election, is more than I can understand. Bread, meat and clothing should be more to any man than even life long affiliation with any party whose policy becomes antagonistic to its н к Тисквек. best interests.

ATTEMPTS to work a confidence game on Democrats are still being made by the National and state Democratic committees who are appealing to individual Democrats for financial aid, although the Democratic National committee has millions and the state committee thousands of dollars in their corruption funds secured from federal office holders, trusts and English manufacturers who desire the protective tariff system destroyed in this country.

CLEARLY PUT.

A Former Democrat Gives a Resume of Cleveland's Acta. The following is from the pen of J. Middleditte who voted for Cleveland in 1884 but won't in 1888:

"The agony of this administration over a surplus in the treasury is simply ridiculous. Would it be in ecstasy over deficiency. From the appropriations already made by the house of representatives there will be no surplus, and any reduction of revenue must result in a deficiency. Nearly four years of Mr. Cleveland's business methods have clapsed and our extensive seacoast is still defenseless. The secretary of the navy has constructed half a dezen vessels and sold for $10 a frigate costing over half a million dellars. The secretary of state has offended both Austria and Italy by his appointments. The present secretary of the treasury is buying government four per cent. bonds at $1.27, while the late secretary of the in terior recommended the government to accept seventy-five cents on the dollar for the $60,000,000 government six per cent, bonds owned by the perfectly solvent Pacific railroads, and which are worth $1.30 in the open market. The president lends $58,000,000 of government money to the banks without charging them interest, yet his policy exacted just $244 taxes for July last from men and those who use tobacco. He is ponderously industrious in vetoing small pearsion bills to save a few dollars, but signs without protest the Mexican pension bill to spend millions. He protects the public lands by saving 160 acres for Guilford Miller, but gives away thousands of acres to railroads in the backbone land-grant bill, and removes, with an empty compliment to his "rugged honesty," the land commissioner who stood between the lands and the corporations. As a reformer he has gone out of his way to kick civil service reform down stairs. As governor of New York to showed his hostility to the work namen by veroing a bill to reduce the fire on the elevated railroad to five cents. Under his administration the nation is spinding more than its ricome and is getting annually deep r in debt to Europe If these are the results of Mr Cleveland's business mecho's the country has had

A Somewhat Awkward Incident.

A lady whose garden happens to over look the garden of her next door neighbor was out looking at her flowers the other morning Her little dog. Rags, had accompanied her and took it into his head to lie down picturesquely by the fence His mistress looking down at him as he lay curled up there with his blue ribbon about his neck, clasped her hands in mock admiration and exciaimed, looking steadily

"Ohl don't you think you look awfully nice in your blue ribbon down there!" Just as the words "down there" were out of her mouth she noticed, to her hor ror, that the lady next door, whose inti mate acquaintance she had not the honor of, was exactly in the line of her vision in the next yard and that she wore a blue ribbon on her hair! The lady next door looked up in indignation. Rags was in visible from where she stood, and she had no doubt the remark was addressed to her She turned about with a fierce movement rushed back into her house and slammed the door after her.
